

Preparing to Go Off Campus

WPI travelers must take an active role in addressing administrative, health and safety concerns inherent to international travel. If you are planning a trip abroad, recognize that certain regions require special considerations due to political, cultural, legal or health-related reasons. Your careful review and consideration of the current state of your travel destination(s) is critical to your trip's success. If you have any health and safety questions please contact us.

Supporting Diversity Off Campus

Global Experience Office recognizes that different aspects of your identity may impact your experience abroad. We encourage all travelers to reflect on the different aspects of their identity when preparing for travel abroad.

Considerations

How you identify in the United States may not be how you choose to identify abroad and may not be how you are identified by your destination country. We encourage all travelers to research your destination country's history, culture, laws, and demographics.

"When you go abroad, it's inevitable to find yourself in a conversation with someone whose opinions vary greatly from yours." from Diversity Abroad on how to engage in challenging conversations while abroad.

Please consult the following resources as you consider and prepare for your experience off campus.
